

Europe Sings, Trades Gifts In Blackouts

Greeks Battle Italians In Albania, British In Libya.
But Through It All, Spirit of Christmas
Marches On

(By The Associated Press.)

There were blackouts and debris, the roar of guns and the scream of air raid warnings but Europe's warring nations also have for their Christmas the traditional decorations, the carol singing and exchanges of gifts.

Pope Pius' plea for a Christmas truce was rejected and there was no sign of one on any front.

Greek forces battled Italians in Albania in bitter winter weather.

In Libya, British forces pushed ahead in desert sands against Premier Mussolini's North African army.

But through it all the spirit of Christmas marches on.

From besieged Britain King George VI tomorrow will broadcast his usual Christmas message to the empire. Descriptions of the wartime scene in the dominions will make up part of the program. High prices curtailed greenery displays in Germany, but dancing was permitted during the holiday season. Children were to receive candy, nuts and honey.

Adolf Hitler spent last Christmas with his troops in the front lines on the western front but it was not disclosed where he would spend the day this year.

British children spending the holidays in Canada were assured mass parties, of distributions of toys by the government and of chances for a few lucky ones to talk to their parents in the British Isles by radio.

In the British homeland itself thousands of British children were far from home—removed from popular centers to "safer" areas. British blackout regulations banned outdoor Yuletide decorations. Christmas trees were scarce. Toy sales had been curtailed, printing of Christmas cards had been reduced to conserve paper but, as one government official put it:

Every effort is being made to make Christmas as bright and happy as humanly possible under the circumstances.

The Greeks will observe their Christmas two weeks hence.

Blackouts and sharp food restrictions curtailed some of the seasonal joy in Rome.

Weather Is Mild Here; Vacation Lands Drenched

The weather bureau offered its Christmas gift to the nation today: Generally mild conditions for the holiday.

Forecaster H. A. Downs of Chicago said there was no indication of a sudden turn to severely cold weather or heavy snow.

Demonstrating the midwest mildness, Chicagoans anticipated Christmas day temperature around 45, with no snow or rain.

Eastern states will have generally cloudy weather tomorrow during the daytime with rain arriving by nightfall.

The winter vacation lands of California and Florida both were plagued with rain in the past 24 hours.

THE CRY OF THE CHRIST

Adown the welkin of the wintry sky,
At Christmas time there comes a piteous cry—
"My God, my God, hast Thou forsaken Me
That man forgets the gift of Calvary?
A war-cursed world, of bitterness and strife,
Where man has lost his sense of Christian life.
"Long years ago, upon that bitter day,
I prayed Dear God, the cup might pass away.
Again I pray that Thou wilt touch mankind,
And heal the race that's mad and deaf and blind.
That it may see the church they burn in lust,
Will still call men when they have gone to dust.

"There is no permanence in walls of steel,
The cannon's mouth may make them rock and reel,
There is no permanence in laws of might,
Unless they too be founded on the right."
Brute force has nothing great to lean upon,
In his last hour, thus spoke Napoleon.

Christ's words immortal, they can never die,
So write them now upon the Christian sky.
"Arouse the race in every tongue and land,
For truth and righteousness again to stand.
Let bright banners of peace fill the earth and sky,
For who takes the sword, by it will surely die."

Ohio Industry Forges Ahead; Many Get Jobs

Factories Long Dark Are Rumbling Again, More Millions Being Paid Out; Most Cities Report Increased Employment

(By Associated Press)

Ohio's industries, fed by defense orders and a demand from generally expanding business, are pouring millions of new dollars into the pockets of the working man and woman.

Factories long dark and silent are rumbling again. Laborers are going back to work, overtime pay is increasing, bonuses are being distributed.

Virtually all cities are benefitting, according to an Associated Press survey. A report by the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce said that a study of 100 manufacturers showed employment of 83,460 persons compared with 73,003 a year ago.

In Columbus, where firms have received more than $8,000,000 in defense orders, key industries are paying more than $700,000 to stockholders this month. A $10,000,000 aircraft factory is under construction.

In Toledo, informed persons estimated that upward of $12,000,000 would be paid out in dividends and interest from stocks and bonds in December.

Scores of smaller cities felt the rising tempo. Relief rolls are dropping, some communities report shortage of skilled labor, and new construction is under way.

PLAN TO UNCOVER PEACE PROSPECTS, IF ANY, PROPOSED

Tydings Says U. S. Then
Could Chart Its Future
Course

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—Senator Tydings (D-Md.) suggested today that the United States ask Great Britain and the Axis powers for a statement of the conditions under which each would agree to end the European war.

Given such a statement, Tydings said that this country could determine for itself whether there appeared to be any basis for negotiations of a "just" peace. If there was, the United States could work toward that end, he added, while if there was not, it would know what country stood in the way and could shape its course accordingly.

Urges "Peace of Justice"
"I do not speak of a peace of appeasement, but a peace of justice," Tydings told reporters.

He said it was his opinion that a "just" peace would involve restoration of the political sovereignty of Norway, Denmark, the Netherlands, Belgium and France, with the possible creation of a wholly Polish and Czechoslovakian states. It must be accompanied, he said, by a measure of actual, as well as promised, disarmament.

An advocate of extending aid to Great Britain, Tydings expressed the opinion that if the United States found there was no bringing about a lasting and equitable peace, the knowledge would be invaluable in shaping the course of defense preparations.

Would Speed Defense Plans
"If we found that a just peace could not be established," he said, "we could proceed with a will and vim and more rightly project our country's course in its future international dealings."

At the same time, two Republican house members who had just returned from a trip to Panama called for immediate strengthening of defenses in the canal zone.

Rep. Bradley (R-Mich.) said that he didn't see a single modern plane in the zone and declared that military aircraft should be dispatched "as fast as they came off the production line."

ALIENS' DEADLINE SET FOR THURSDAY

Justice Department Will
Keep Track of U. S.
Non-Citizens

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—With the deadline for registration of aliens set for midnight Thursday, justice department officials are devising a permanent program for keeping track of non-citizens in the United States.

More than 4,200,000 registrations have been received since Aug. 27, and officials expect the total to reach 4,600,000 or higher. That compares with the advance estimate of 3,600,000 on which the registration machinery was based.

After the registration period ends, the justice department will have two immediate tasks—filling, checking and classifying the aliens; and finding and prosecuting those who have defied the law.

In addition, there will be the continuing job of recording changes of address, noting new affiliations and activities, checking off those who leave this country or become citizens, and completing the registration of alien children when they reach the age of 14.

All foreigners seeking entry to the United States hereafter must register and be fingerprinted when they apply to the American consul in their native land.

In general, the law provides that every alien, except officials of foreign governments and their families, must register and be fingerprinted.

Each registered alien will get a receipt card. The alien registration division has mailed out 1,600,000 thus far and expects to have all sent out by Feb. 15.

THERE ALWAYS WILL BE ONE MORE CHRISTMAS

There is a question that needs asking throughout Christendom, an easy question with an easy answer. What is it this Christmas that sustains faith in Christian principles?

Certainly it can be nothing but certainty that there will be one more Christmas—that there always will be one more Christmas. The principles that govern Christendom will not perish.

Men will strive to do unto others as they would have others do unto them. They will be tolerant of the weak, the miserable, the poor and the stupid. They will try to be just and upright.

They will not debate themselves by exploiting the baseness of others. They will be sparing in the use of their strength, except in causes for the betterment of all mankind.

In the presence of things they do not fully understand, they will be humble, remembering always that man must be held answerable for their deeds by something higher than other men.

They will do what is right insofar as it is given them to understand what is right, and they will remember that their perception of right and wrong is circumscribed by their own frailty.

They will preserve, rather than destroy. They will be constantly aware of their kinship with all living things. They will not poison themselves with hate or scourge the earth with violence.

Nothing will shake their conviction that there is a brotherhood of man and that it imposes on each individual an obligation of goodwill. The earth is good and productive and only man is vile.

And they will believe in the things that make Christmas a glad and happy season, believing staunchly that some day those things will stand up-ermost throughout the world, not because they embody a creed or a doctrine but because they embody the aspirations of all mankind. Whatever happens, whatever failures are recorded, whatever challenges are hurled, there always will be one more Christmas. There always will be the hope that one day Christmas will not be just one day but a condition of humanity that will endure throughout all the days of all the years.

TOUGHENING-UP

In this country "toughness" has picked up a colloquial meaning of moral collapse that has nothing to do with the primary meaning of the word—to be able to withstand extreme pressure without breaking. It is the primary meaning that is now in the minds of those who are talking about the necessity for a national toughening-up, which covers everything meant by preparations for national defense.

As H. R. Knickerbocker, foreign correspondent now lecturing in the United States, puts it, the softness of Great Britain when war began was exceeded only by the softness of the United States. The British, fighting for survival, have been toughening-up rapidly; Americans so far have made little progress. They are victims of what might be called the supreme irony of life.

Men struggle endlessly to attain a condition of existence that will relieve them of the necessity for further struggle, knowing full well that the price of success will be the impairment of their own strength. The wealthy man ruins his son by relieving him of the necessity for struggle. The rich nation grows complacent and flabby, prey for the less fortunate nation which adversity has toughened for a matching of strength.

Germany, plunged into hardship for 20 years after losing the World war, crushes France and threatens Britain, its World war conquerors. Greece, which never had a chance to get soft, proves more than a match for Italy, not because Italians lack toughness but because Greeks are tougher. The United States, tough when it was wrestling a new civilization from the wilderness, suddenly realizes it enjoyed its security not wisely but too well. Like Britain, it either must match the toughness of the lean, hungry peoples who are eyeing its riches, or surrender what it once won by being lean and hungry, itself.

GRAND STRATEGY

Communicates make Britain's invasion of the Adriatic look more sensational than it appears on the map, but it is tell-tale evidence, nevertheless, that British warships safely passed through the Straits of Otranto to shell Albanian and Italian ports. Perhaps on some later occasion the British invaders will plunge far into the Adriatic. Perhaps they will tangle some day with the lighter Italian vessels in that narrow sea and take them out of the war. Before too long they may remind Fascist warmakers of something they thought they could safely forget, that Italy is a peninsula and wide open to attack by a stronger naval power.

If these things were to happen and part of the British Mediterranean fleet could be sent home to guard the British Isles, while the rest controlled movements of all water commerce between Gibraltar and Suez, the blockade of the Axis powers would be complete. The threat of invasion of Britain would be greatly reduced. Italy virtually would be made helpless, as Germany's ally. There might even be an offensive naval movement to weaken Germany in the North sea. Certainly, no further time would be lost in tracking down Nazi raiders. Britain's naval movements in the Mediterranean, all of them successful so far, are part of the grand strategy of the war, a plan of naval battle that will be studied by admirals for years to come.

APPLIED HOT

Lawyers seem to be bearing up bravely, but rarely has their profession been poulticed at a higher temperature than one of them, Franklin D. Roosevelt, reached in his veto of the Logan-Walter bill. Actually, the heat was applied by two lawyers; Attorney General Jackson prepared a brief on the bill for the President. Some samples:

"The bill that is now before me is one of the repeated efforts by a combination of lawyers who desire to have all processes of government conducted through lawsuits . . . Substantial justice remains a higher aim for our civilization than technical legalism . . . Litigation has become costly beyond the ability of the average person to bear . . . Today, in sustaining American ideals of justice, an ounce of action is worth more than a pound of argument."

In short, confronted with a bill that attempted to establish a method of appeal from decision of what he calls "administrative tribunals," the President plainly said that lawsuits were not the answer because lawyers too often are more concerned with splitting hairs than distinguishing between right and wrong. At the same time, he acknowledged there was room for improvement in the streamlined administrative processes of executive agencies. That's where the argument over the Walter-Logan bill started; it seems to have ended temporarily at the same place.

THE STARS SAY:

For Wednesday, December 25

THE TRUE Spirit of Christmas may be lost sight of by excitement, over indulgence, prodigality and reckless quest for drama and thrills, for high adventure in unusual or unorthodox manner, judging by the predominant influence of the weaker aspects of forceful planets. The surprising, wayward and audacious may reign over moderation, obscuring the conventional and religious purpose of the day. Wild, reckless and "devastating" celebrations may end in dramatic but regrettable culminations unless there be due respect and restraints of the occasion. Romance and adventure present exciting angles.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of great activity, excitement and adventure, with many surprising and breathtaking experiences albeit these may not enjoy the enduring thrill and happy climax anticipated. New business adventures of an original and constructive objective may have some phases of success, but vigilance and calm judgment should obtain rather than impetuosity or erratic notions or behaviorisms.

A child born on this day should be talented, inventive and enterprising but an explosive, reckless or temperamental nature may prove its self-undoing.

For Thursday, December 26

THE LUNAR transits governing this day should point to a moderate degree of success with many lively and pleasant adventures both in the business as well as the private associations. The most definite accomplishments may be in connection with groups, organizations or other affiliations of a collective or community interest. This may have happy reactions of the personal activities of an artistic, social or affectional nature. In such contacts it might be well to employ finesse or strategy rather than too direct approach or boldness.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a moderate degree of success and accomplishment, with much gratification of a purely personal nature. Efforts in connection with others for the public, community or social welfare are particularly stimulated and promising. The happiest of reactions from this progress and high purpose may be felt in social, artistic or cordial contacts of a rather elusive or intriguing quality. Personal prestige and preferment may be hoped.

A child born on this day will be enterprising, purposeful and of high ideals although expressing itself with much warmth, kindness and gentility. It should attain success and personal popularity.

"TROUBLING AILMENTS KEPT ME IN MISERY DAY AND NIGHT," SAYS LOCAL RESIDENT

Suffered From Stomach Disorders and Was a Chronic Sufferer of Constipation. Many Nights Would Be Bothered With Having to Fight For Breath Which Was Due to Gas Pains Crowding Around His Heart.

"I had been a victim of stomach trouble and constipation for quite some time. These ailments were causing many different troubles which kept me miserable day and night," says Mr. Wilbert Graham, living at Poland, Ohio, R. R. 1, near Salem, and a Member of the Church of Christ.

"Constipation kept my stomach so upset there was hardly a meal that didn't disagree with me. My food didn't digest properly and many nights I would wake up at midnight fighting for breath due to gas pains crowding around my heart. I was afraid my heart would stop many times because the pains were so severe. I would get up in the morning with a foul breath, and a heavily coated tongue. I didn't have any appetite and was gradually losing weight. I always felt worn out and sluggish.

How To Keep Glass Eyes From Being Frosted

By LOGAN CLENEDENING, M. D.
How do you keep glass eyes from becoming frosted in cold weather?

This problem affecting an unfortunate minority, is something like windshield frosting trouble. During cold weather, the secretions tend to dry and harden on the glass eye, causing irritation.

The eye can be dipped in a solution. The solution must not irritate the eye socket nor have any deleterious effect on the glass eye, nor have an offensive odor. Such a solution, recommended by a high authority, is boric acid, glycerine and distilled water, in equal quantities. This can be dropped in the eye socket, rubbed into the skin, and the glass eye can be dipped into it without harm. It has no odor.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

The tomato has high nutritional value. It is universally liked and palatable to most people, and it is adaptable to use in different forms such as soups, salads, vegetables and is often used as a sauce for meat.

Vitamin Content

The most important nutritional advantages of the tomato consist in its vitamin content. It has as high Vitamin C (anti-scurvy) as orange juice. Canned tomato juice can be used instead of orange juice for infant feeding.

It has also been found that the tomato contains good amounts of Vitamin B1, which everybody seems to be anxious to obtain nowadays, so much so that they are talking about adding it to standard food products, such as bread. Since you can get plenty of it in the tomato there is no use introducing it artificially into white flour. A prominent dietary authority says that tomatoes may be regarded, from a nutritional standpoint, as one of the most palatable solutions of the three vitamins. He referred to A, B, and C.

Recent research has shown that tomatoes contain appreciable quantities of Vitamin G, now known as riboflavin.

Most of the vitamins of the tomato are contained in the pulp.

Spider Marks on Skin

What can be done for the so-called spider or sky rocket marks on the skin?

These are due to small veins which have dilated. They are found sometimes on the face, and almost invariably on the legs which have varicose veins. They are difficult to treat but cause little trouble. Dermatologists have found that when the fine dilations converge towards a central point, this may be entered with a small needle, which destroys the entire pattern.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

T. R. M.—"Please give a list of vegetables and fruits that have the highest assimilable iron content."

Answer—Kale, spinach, turnips, prunes, wheat flour, oatmeal, peas (molasses).

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, 235 E. 45th St., New York. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Madeleine Carroll, Gary Cooper and Paulette Goddard in "Northwest Mounted Police," beginning Wednesday at the State theater for four days.

The State theater's holiday attraction will be "North West Mounted Police," featuring Gary Cooper, Madeleine Carroll, Preston Foster, Robert Preston, and Paulette Goddard. The film shows Wednesday through Saturday.

A Cecil B. DeMille epic, in which he employs technicolor for the first time, should be something and it is. An impressive list of featured players does well with the story of the revolt in 1285 of a tribe of people, half-breed voyagers and renegades, called the Metis. The revolt, a matter of record, amounted to a civil war which nearly rent Canada asunder. Only the daring, courage and loyalty of 500 mounties saved the dominion.

Others in the giant cast are Lynne Overman, Akim Tamiroff, George Bancroft, Walter Hampden, Lon Chaney, Jr., Montagu Love, Regis Toomey, George E. Stone, Willard Robertson and Wallace Reid, Jr.

Showing Wednesday and Thursday at the Grand is "One Night in the Tropics," a Jerome Kern musical, with Allan Jones, Nancy Kelly, Bud Abbott and Lou Costello and Robert Cummings. The story of a young insurance salesman who sells his best friend "love insurance" and causes romantic complications among two couples features some of the latest Kern melodies as well as

OUR READERS

Cunningham's comet is here, and may be seen low in the sky as soon as it is dark enough to see the stars. Just a little north of west.

This comet is a tramp in the universe, at least it has not been seen before as there is no record of it. It is approximately the size of Halley's comet, that appeared in 1908. On Jan. 19, should the tail of the comet be long enough, a mere matter of 60,000,000 miles, the earth will be directly in the tail of it. While 60,000,000 isn't too long for a comet's tail, it would no doubt embarrass a dog or cat. Yet a comet can swish it about as handily as though it were but a foot long. Not up and down or about as a dog does his, but it must keep its tail in line with the head and the sun.

Should we find ourselves enveloped in the tail we can expect to see some phenomena in lights and shadows. Less than a hundred years ago such a phenomena would have caused much fear and apprehension. But astronomers will view this only as an interesting spectacle.

Says Word "Collapse" Is Not Even In British Dictionary

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—Arthur B. Purvis, director-general of the British purchasing commission, said today that accelerated production of American war material during the next 60 to 90 days would be important for England, but only as a pace-setter for future arms output.

The principal British agent in the purchase of billions of dollars worth of airplanes, tanks, steel, ships and other material flew to Washington to give Treasury Secretary Morgenthau an hour-long review of what he found in England.

Purvis said that British and American officials meant to imply no fear of military peril when they stressed the importance of accelerated production in the next few months.

When asked whether "collapse" was implied in that period, Purvis replied heatedly:

"Collapse—the word isn't even in our dictionary."

"If you understand that the strategy of this war," he continued to reporters, "depends on the dominant supply of weapons, you will realize the importance of the next few weeks."

"The production of weapons, both in the United Kingdom and in North America—by which I mean both the United States and Canada—is the keynote to stopping the war."

"The more we produce in the next few weeks, the greater will be the production six months from now."

Milk Men To Get Break; Morning Deliveries Stop

COLUMBUS, Dec. 24.—Now, Columbus' milk men get a break. There'll be no more getting up at 2 o'clock in the mornings or working on Sundays.

The Columbus Milk Dealers association announced today that daylight deliveries would start Jan. 6 and that Sunday service would be discontinued after Jan. 4.

Modern refrigeration has made possible the new service, which the association said would improve the "family life" of the early-rising milkmen, give him a shorter day and eliminate the hazards of night work.

Milk dealers also will distribute next month a lighter bottle which is easier to store in the refrigerator.

RAF PLANES BOMB "INVASION PORTS"

British Speculate On Possibility of Nazi Christmas Raid

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, Dec. 24.—British warplanes bombed German "invasion ports" during the night and again attacked Ludwigshafen, junction point on one of the main traffic routes linking the industrial Saar basin with Italy, the air ministry announced today.
Raids also were carried out against "industrial targets" in the Rhineland, a brief communique declared.
Listed specifically among the "invasion ports" bombed were Boulogne and Dunkerque in German-occupied France, and Ostend in Belgium.

One Plane Down

One of the British raiders was said to have come down at sea and the crew was reported missing.
While the British air force was busy over Germany, Nazi night raiders concentrated a heavy attack on England's industrial north-west.
Authorized British sources permitted identification of the area which bore the brunt of the assault merely as "Lancashire" (in which are situated the great cities of Liverpool and Manchester, both of which have been heavily bombed recently).

(Informal sources in Berlin said the German air raids last night were concentrated on Manchester.)
The British assault coincided with reports of unusual activity along the German-occupied French coast, which led to speculation here that the Nazis might be planning a Christmas attempt to invade England.

Fly Over Switzerland
(Reports from Bern said that a number of unidentified planes had flown across Switzerland during the night along the route sometimes taken by British bombers attacking Axis objectives.)

Wave after wave of German bombers, which began coming over after dusk, participated in the assault on northwest England, and the government acknowledged that a number of fires were started and that "considerable damage" was done in that area.

A number of persons were killed and injured in one northwest town when a bomb scored a direct hit on an air raid shelter. Several were buried in cellars when their houses collapsed.

EARTHQUAKE FELT IN U. S., CANADA

Christmas Trees Are Shaken; No Serious Damage Is Reported

(By Associated Press)
BOSTON, Dec. 24.—An earthquake, the second in five days shook northeastern United States and portions of Canada, as far west as the province of Ontario, today.

Despite the great area in which the shocks were felt, running westward hundreds of miles from the New England coast, southwestward into New York and Pennsylvania, and northward into Quebec, no serious damage was indicated.

Christmas Trees Shaken
The tremors, beginning at 8:43 to 8:44 a. m., knocked Christmas tree ornaments and toilet articles to the floor in some places, rattled dishes, and caused furniture to rock slightly.

The Harvard university seismograph station at Harvard, Mass., reported that the quake apparently was as severe as that of last Friday.

Seismologists, who said last week's shock was caused by a slow lifting of the earth crust in New England, depressed by enormous ice masses during the ice age, studied their records to determine the nature of today's tremors.

Destruction of a rare tile gargoyle was reported from the Peabody museum at Salem, Mass., where the relic was knocked from a shelf and crashed through a show case before it fell, broken, on the floor.
Some sections reported continuing tremors a half hour after the first shock.

We send you sincere and hearty greetings, full of Christmas cheer for each of you. And we add good wishes for happiness and prosperity during the next twelve months.

Jarvis Is Arraigned; Enters Plea of Guilty

LISBON, Dec. 24.—Sherman Jarvis, 20, of near Sallineville, pleaded guilty to a charge of pointing and discharging firearms when arraigned last night before Justice M. K. Zimmerman and was fined $100 and costs.

Jarvis was arrested by Sheriff M. K. Duty yesterday after he shot in the direction of a group of boys he was attempting to chase off a neighbor's farm. One of the boys, Clifton Rhodes, 14, of New Salisbury, was hit in the leg by a shotgun pellet.

Erie Railroad Makes Personnel Transfers

The road also said R. L. Murphy moves up from general agent to assistant general freight agent at Cincinnati, and F. W. Fischer now an agent at Youngstown, will become division freight agent at Dayton.

HITS 'FREE GAMES' ON MARBLE BOARDS

Court of Appeals Rules Such Contrivances Are Gambling

YOUNGSTOWN, Dec. 24.—Those fancy multi-colored marble boards with the flashing lights, galloping ponies, diving beauties and big numbers, are illegal if they award "free games," says a ruling of the court of appeals here.

The court decrees further that a city may not license such machines which it held to be gambling devices.

The ruling invalidates a Youngstown city ordinance which has yielded $1,300 this year in license fees.

Elaborate devices for rolling steel balls through a maze of scoring beacons, springs and slots have been operating in almost every drug store, beer parlor and restaurant here. Many operators admit they yield big returns.

The court referred to evidence that operators paid winners with "free games" meaning, the court said, more games without cost or the monetary equivalent.

The evidence shows clearly that all such machines are games of chance and therefore gambling devices," the court held.

"City councilmen can not decide that black is white. The language saying that they (the marble boards) are games of skill is confounded by the evidence."

The decision upholds a common pleas court ruling invalidating the licensing ordinance. The original case was initiated in the name of Joseph Sergi, a tax payer. Sheriff Ralph E. Elser has banned such machines in Mahoning county outside Youngstown.

City Law Director John A. Wilho said city officials would study the appeals court's decision before determining upon further action.

There is a division of opinion in city council on the issue. Some sentiment has favored outright repeal of the ordinance and some suggest an attempt to substitute a legal ordinance.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—Discovery that he had been robbed jolted Z. N. Jesse. He started to back his automobile out of his garage and the front end dropped off a jack. Both front wheels had been stolen.

Breezy Briefs Of Sport From Brietz To You

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—The tip is out that although Dr. George Hauser, Minnesota line coach, is No. 1 on Ohio State's shopping list, the Buckeyes would settle for Dallas Ward, Gopher freshman coach.... When the Brooklyn report next spring, Larry MacPhail will tell them they'll train in California in 1942—if they win the pennant.... Cleveland has canned the scout who reported Sid Hudson would never make a big league pitcher.

String Running Out

In successive years Tennessee football teams have been chosen for the Orange, Rose and Sugar bowls.... Pretty soon there'll be nothing left in the bowl line for the Vols but the bowling alleys.

Gadding About

Bill Jurgens won't be out of the woods until the medics see how he reacts to a few weeks of exercising in the sun.... Cotton bowl officials are kicking each other where it hurts most for underestimating the drawing power of their show and reducing prices. Result will mean a gross gate of nearer $120,000 than the anticipated $145,000.... What's this about Waite Hoyt, the old pitcher, replacing Red Barber as aircaster for the Dodger games next season?

Today's Guest Star

Al Buck, New York Post: "Mike Jacobs is trying to get Lew Jenkins to change his mind about retiring and Lew is trying just as hard to get Mrs. Jenkins to change her's."

Short, Short Stories

Coach Dixie Howell, has invited his old boss, Frank Thomas of Alabama, to sit on the bench with the Arizona State Bulldogs when they play Western Reserve in the Sun bowl.... Cleveland already has sent Catcher Gene Desautels a contract offering him more dough than the Red Sox paid him. Incidentally, Boston scribes are panning the Desautels-Frankie Pytlak swap.

Bucky Walters Captures 1940 National Loop Pitching Honors

HIS EARNED RUN RECORD IS BETTER THAN BOB FELLER'S

Cincinnati Reds' Star Hurler Tops League Second Straight Year

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—Dispelling any doubt about the identity of the leading pitcher in the National league, the official averages for 1940 were announced today and thrust the laurels right back on the slender shoulders of William Henry Walters, Jr., of the Cincinnati Reds.

For the second successive year he had the lowest earned run average, 2.48, and the most triumphs, most complete games, most innings pitched and most batters faced.

It was the repeat proper to the rivals who taunted him during the season with the nickname "Lucky Bucky," because there was no luck in Bucky's achievement.

He started 36 games on the hill for the world champions and finished 29 of them, winning 22 and losing 10. He pitched 305 innings and worked against 1,207 batters.

Walters' earned run average not only was the best in the senior circuit, but it topped the 2.62 mark of Cleveland's Bobby Feller in the American league. In 1939 Walters, who came up to the majors as an infielder, turned in a 2.29 average that also was better than the best in the rival league.

There were other outstanding pitching performances in the National league last season, but nothing close to the sweeping success of the 30-year-old Philadelphia.

The leading percentage pitcher was fat Freddie Fitzsimmons, the 39-year-old player-coach of the Brooklyn Dodgers, who won 16 games and lost only two. This was a remarkable record for the chunky knuckle-baller, who the year before had lost more games than he won, but Fitz was used strictly as a spot worker, chiefly against second division foes, and started exactly 18 games.

Anyway his winning percentage of .893 was a new high for the National league and he rated fourth in earned runs with 2.82 per nine inning game.

The next best hurling, considered from all angles, was turned in by Truett (Rip) Sewell of the Pittsburgh Pirates, a 21-year-old Alabama kid. He rated third in earned runs with 2.79 and second in winning percentage with 16 victories and five defeats. He started 23 games and worked in relief on 10 other occasions.

Big Paul Derringer, the lion-hearted dean of the Reds' mound staff, slipped from the supremacy he shared with Walters in 1939 and finished sixth in the league with a record of 20 and 12. He proved in the World series, though, that he still had his stuff in the "clutch."

Hugh (Losing Pitcher) Mulcahy of the Phillies again was the season's goat, losing the most games, 22; allowing the most hits, 283; giving up the most runs, 147; and suffering the longest losing streak, 12 games.

BOSTON, Dec. 24.—Jimmy Wilson, new manager of the Chicago Cubs and former Cincinnati Reds Coach, has been awarded the Paul H. Shannon Memorial plaque by the Boston branch of the Baseball Writers association as the baseball player who performed the greatest individual feat of the season.

The writers cited Wilson's performance during the World series, when he caught five of the seven games, and piloted Bucky Walters and Paul Derringer to two victories each.

Fryogle aided the winners with 10 points while Hobson accounted for nine of the loser's markers.

The next Goshen contest will be at Springfield, Jan. 3.

ORPHANS TOSSED OUT INTO COLD BY SANITARY'S QUINT

Bob Jefferies Collects 14; Cadets, Y. P. C. C., News Win In Class B

Big Bob Jefferies rattled the Memorial building backboards for six field goals and a brace of fouls—a grand total of 14 points—to lead the fast-stepping National Sanitary quint of the Class A circuit to a 29-24 victory over the Orphans last night.

The battle was close all the way and the count on several occasions was knotted up prior to the final period.

Jefferies not only excelled in point-getting but he also was a big factor in getting the rebounds. In the matter of point-making he was trailed by Kleon of the Orphans who dumped in 12.

The Young People's club defeated the Christians, 29 to 16, the Cadets downed the Presbyterians, 36 to 9, and the Salem News won from the Saxons, 20 to 14, in Class B encounters.

Hickling and M. Hippeley led the Young People with 9 and 8 points, for the Christians.

Guappone led the bucket brigade for the Cadets over the Presbyterians. H. Grey got 5 of the losers' 9 points.

Shoe and Wise, with 9 and 8 points, respectively, led the Newsies scoring, while Kinn collected 8, or more than half the Saxons' total points.

"Endangering the Reich"

Germany has demanded that the U. S. recall Cecil M. P. Cross (left), first secretary at the U. S. Embassy in Paris, and Leigh W. Hunt, second secretary, as well as Miss Elizabeth Deegan, reception clerk. They are accused of "endangering the Reich" by helping a British officer escape from France. Washington indicated the trio will be moved to Lisbon, but that this did not mean admission of guilt.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

When the doctor had gone, the Sheriff turned to Inspector Burrows.

"Let's hear about your eight suspects."

"Well, there's Stephen Osborne, the father; Edith Osborne, the mother; five children—"

"Ages?"

"The parents, about fifty, I suppose. The children range from twelve years to twenty-three."

"We can forget the twelve-year-old."

"I'm not so sure about that. You heard what the doctor said. A child could have done it. And children of twelve have committed murders before this."

"Well, go on. Who's your eighth suspect?"

"Hannah Gale, the maid. She's in her forties."

"A servant? Do you think a servant is likely to have—"

"Wait till you see her. She's a holy terror. And devoted to the family. You'll hardly believe it but when the state trooper who was first on the scene arrived, she actually tried to make him come in the back way—with a murdered corpse in the house! Told him to take his dirty feet off her clean doorstep!"

"Nice girl! Have you questioned these people?"

"Haven't had time. Besides, I thought I'd wait for you. I had a few words with a Miss Mimms who was a sort of companion to the dead man, but that's all."

"This Miss Mimms doesn't figure in your list of suspects?"

"Come over here and I'll show you why."

The Inspector led Black to a table on which were spread some sheets of paper, covered with writing in a thin, precise hand. They were charred at the edges but still legible. The Sheriff bent over them.

"...to the S. P. C. A., one hundred thousand dollars..... looks like a draft of a will."

"That's what it is, Sheriff. When the state trooper got her, he found it burning in the fireplace. If he hadn't had the presence of mind to drag the papers out and stamp on 'em, they'd have been completely destroyed. Look at this page...."

to my faithful servant, Catherine Emily Mimms, five thousand dollars a year for life.... If the will had been legally drawn up and signed before the murder, I should be pretty suspicious of this Catherine Emily Mimms, for apart from a number of charities, she's the only person to benefit by it—but would she be likely to murder her employer before the will was in proper shape, thus doing herself out of five thousand a year? Would she? I ask you!"

"Not unless she's nuts! This drafted will looks fishy to me, though. But I'll bet it has a lot to do with the case."

"It is the case. The old woman was bumped off to prevent the will being drawn up and signed."

All this time a large man in a dark suit had been moving about the room, examining the furniture with a magnifying glass, dusting powder on selected spots.

"If you're looking for fingerprints, Feathers," said the Sheriff dryly, "you'd find plenty. It looks as though this room was used a lot."

"Sure," said Inspector Burrows, "but my idea is this: we'll photograph every fingerprint in the room then we'll take the prints of every member of the family. We'll compare 'em. If we find one that doesn't match, then an outsider has been in the room today. If not, it throws the murder right in the family's lap."

"Unless the murderer wore gloves," replied the Sheriff.

"Look at this," said Burrows. He picked up the silk scarf with which the murder had been committed and spread it out. There were some black smudges on the shiny fabric.

"Oil," commented Sheriff Black.

"Exactly. And where would you expect to find thick black oil in a house like this?"

"In the garage, I suppose."

"There isn't a garage—but there is a car, an old flivver belonging to the eldest son, Michael. And 'Mike' has been working on his engine all day!"

"Looks okay for Mike, this oil does. I see you've been busy. Burrows."

rows. Keep on like this and you'll have the case sewed up in no time."

"I wish I could feel that way. But in most murder cases there are one or two witnesses who can be relied on to tell the truth. In this case all the witnesses are members of the family. When they've had time to hink the matter over—if they haven't done so already—they'll come to the conclusion which I've already reached; that one of them must have done it. And do you think they'll help us find out which?"

"I guess not," said Sheriff Black. "Kell, let's have them in one at a time. Who do you suggest first?"

"Miss Mimms. She discovered the body, will you?"

"Don't you think it would be better to leave it as it is, for the—the psycho—that is, the shock effect?"

"No, I don't. I think we can get along without third degree methods. And I'm sick of looking at it myself."

Miss Mimms came in, more than ever like a frightened mouse. Her scared eyes travelled to the covered form of her dead mistress and she drew in her breath with a hiss. The bony structure of her face showed sharply through the tight yellow skin, making it look macabre. She seemed ill and very pitiful, standing just inside the door, blinking timidly at the police officials.

Sheriff Black put on his most disarming manner.

"Come in, Miss Mimms. Don't be frightened. No one is going to worry you. We only want to ask you one or two questions. Come over here."

He led her to a chair facing the window, on the edge of which she perched with her back to the shrouded corpse.

"We'll begin by taking your fingerprints, if you don't mind. It's only a formality. Feathers....."

Detective-Sergeant Feathers came forward with a white card and a black inked pad. He took her fingers one by one, moistened them on the pad, pressed them on the card, soaked rag. He placed card and pad on a table, then sat down behind Miss Mimms with an open notebook before him and an indelible pencil poised above it.

"You were the dead woman's companion?" began Sheriff Black pleasantly.

"Well, sir, more her personal maid."

"How long have you been in her employment?"

"Eighteen years in October, sir."

Sergeant Feathers was writing busily in his notebook.

"Was she a kind employer?"

"Yes, sir. She had her little ways and she did not get on with everybody but she was quite kind to me. Now that she is gone I don't know what I shall do."

"With a record of eighteen years in one position you ought to find another quite easily."

"I hope so, sir. But—you see—I never worked for anyone but Miss Osborne. Until my father died it was not necessary for me to earn my own living. I'm afraid I'm quite slow in many ways. It isn't every one who would be patient with me."

"I suppose it surprised you to learn that your mistress intended to leave you five thousand dollars a year for life?"

"Oh, then you knew about it?"

"Mrs. Osborne's maid heard the matter discussed in the dining room at lunch today, sir, and she told me. She was upset; there had been a—"

Miss Mimms stopped talking and looked more frightened than ever.

"Go on. There had been a quarrel at the table. Is that what you were going to say?"

"Yes, sir," she mumbled, almost inaudibly.

"What was the quarrel about?"

Didn't Miss Osborne's relatives like the terms of the new will?"

"No sir, they didn't. And it did seem very unkind of her. They are her only relatives and not very well-off. It wasn't very fair to propose leaving all her money to charity, with the exception of—"

"With the exception of your legacy? Your employer was very rich, wasn't she?"

"Yes, sir, very rich indeed."

"In that case, there is sure to be a will in existence?"

"Yes, sir. There is."

"Have you any idea of its terms?"

"Well, sir, she never confided very much in me but I gather that the existing will leaves most of her property to her brother."

"Do you benefit under it?"

"No, sir. Miss Osborne never told me that she would leave me anything."

"And the old will will stand. Hard on you, isn't it? Especially since you would have inherited five thousand a year if your mistress had lived a few days longer."

"Yes, sir. It is a terrible disappointment."

"Five thousand a year would mean a lot to you?"

"A very great deal, sir."

"Tell me, was Miss Osborne on good terms with her brother's family?"

"I—I am afraid not, sir. But then, she was seldom on good terms with anyone, except me."

"I see. Where were you between lunch and the time you discovered the murder?"

"In bed, sir. When Hannah Gale told me at lunch about the new will being drawn up, I was quite overcome. She made me go upstairs and lie down. She gave me a sedative and I fell asleep. Hannah woke me at half-past three and I came down to find my employer. I found her in here"—her voice broke—"dead."

"Was there anyone else in the room?"

"Yes, sir. Miss Ann Osborne."

"What was she doing? Why hadn't she given the alarm?"

"Well, sir, she was reading a book."

"Reading a book?"

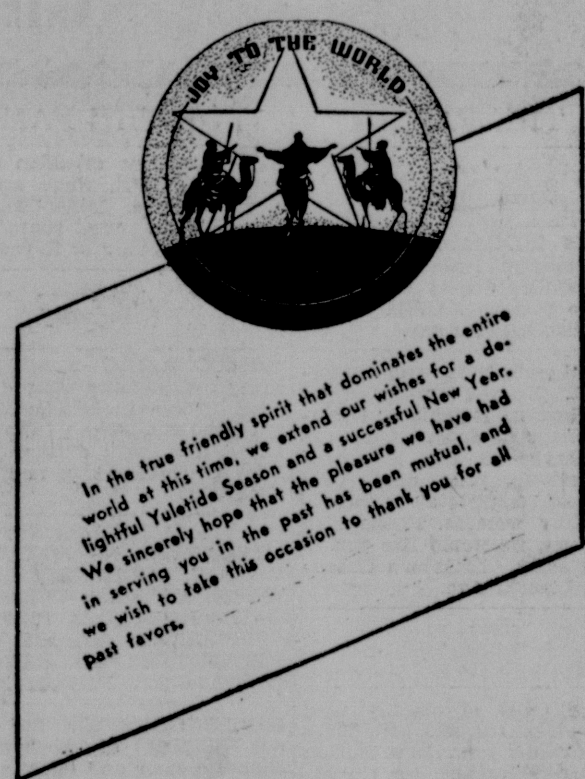

"Yes, sir."

"Good Lord!" exclaimed the Sheriff. Inspector Burrows snorted.

"That is all for the present, Miss Mimms."

The little woman scurried out of the room, casting a terrified glance over her shoulder at the covered chair.
